The Well-Trained Mind Academy is based on the expert advice, carefully selected curricula, and classical model described by Susan Wise Bauer and Jessie Wise in The Well-Trained Mind: A Guide to Classical Education at Home. This bestselling guide to classical education and home schooling was first published in 1999 by W.W. Norton. It is now in its fourth (2016) edition, and has been used by over half a million parents worldwide, as well as by hundreds of co-ops, charter schools, and private schools. The Well-Trained Mind offers a step-by-step, grade-by-grade, subject-by-subject guide to the classical pattern of education, along with curricula recommendations, book lists, and more. The Well-Trained Mind Academy was founded by Susan Wise Bauer to give parents of middle and high school students additional help in carrying out the goals of classical education. Susan holds a BA, MDiv, MA and PhD, the last two from The College of William and Mary in Virginia. Susan has drawn on her academic training, extensive research, two decades of home schooling four children through high school, her own past as a home schooled student, and over fifteen years of college teaching experience to help shape the Academy classes into rigorous, flexible training for middle and high school students. The administration at WTMA works closely with students, parents, and instructors to create an educational environment that fits the needs of each family. All of our instructors have years of experience in teaching, tutoring, homeschooling, or a combination of all three. Our instructors are qualified in their fields; many have earned advanced degrees. We provide live, online instruction that fits your student's educational plan. Our courses develop your student's critical thinking skills through real-world interactions. Our time-tested methods teach your student to express ideas clearly and to engage thoughtfully with the world. Our teaching methods are based on the three-part classical pattern of training the mind, called the trivium. Students begin their studies by learning the foundations of a subject. Questioning and argumentation (logic skills) follow. Finally, students are taught how to express their own ideas about their subjects. At the heart of our curriculum is our mandate to teach students how to learn, so that they may leave WTMA with the motivation to pursue knowledge their whole lives. To provide high-quality, engaging, live, online classes that follow the classical education model in order to support middle and high school students in their learning goals. Empowering students for lifelong learning. To serve students globally with no prejudice based on gender, sexuality, race, ethnicity, nationality, or religion. To use classically grounded methods to emphasize critical thought and analysis in our middle-grade students and teach clear and fluent self-expression to our high school students. To give students clear and actionable feedback on their work in each course. To respect and support our students inside and outside the classroom so that they can focus on learning, development, and growth. To develop our team of highly qualified instructors and administrators who respect each other, their students, and student families and/or guardians. To respect and support our instructors inside and outside the classroom so that they can focus on instruction, assessment, and feedback. Founded in 2001 as Peace Hill Press, Well-Trained Mind Press specializes in K-12 books and curricula that are designed to meet the goals of classical education. In 2016, the Press changed its name to reflect its mission: to help parents and teachers provide the education described in the best-selling guide The Well-Trained Mind: A Guide to Classical Education at Home. Flagship series include the narrative world history series The Story of the World, the elementary and pre-rhetoric programs Writing With Ease and Writing With Skill, and the complete grammar curricula First Language Lessons and Grammar for the Well-Trained Mind, and math teaching and drill resources developed by mathematician and home-school parent Kate Snow. The Press also publishes storyteller Jim Weiss, previously of Greathall Productions, and his full list of audiobooks and illustrated versions of novels, poetry, folk tales, history, and biographies from around the world. The Press hosts the largest and busiest home school message boards on the web; visit to share ideas, ask questions, and find support. Our site also hosts an ever-growing collection of practical, encouraging articles for homeschoolers and other classical educators. Follow the Press on Twitter and Facebook, where the Press Gnome will bring sanity, whimsy, and historical knowledge to your newsfeed. Well-Trained Mind Press is distributed internationally by W. W. Norton and its partners. Press books can be purchased directly from welltrainedmind.com/store, or anywhere books are sold. Susan was born in 1968, grew up in Virginia, and was educated at home by pioneering parents, back when home education was still unheard of. She worked as a professional musician, wore a costume at Colonial Williamsburg, toured with a travelling drama group, galloped racehorses at a Virginia racetrack, taught horseback riding, worked in radio and newspaper ad sales, learned enough Korean to teach a Korean four-year-old Sunday school, and served as librarian and reading tutor for the Rita Welsh Adult Literacy Center in Williamsburg, Virginia. In her less haphazard adult life, she earned an M.A., M.Div., and Ph.D. She has taught at the College of William & Mary in Virginia for the last sixteen years. Susan is married and the mother of four. Susan's most recent book for Norton, The Story of Western Science: From the Writings of Aristotle to the Big Bang Theory (2015), guides us back to the original texts that have changed the way we think about our world, our cosmos, and ourselves. Her previous book, The Well-Educated Mind: A Guide to the Classical Education You Never Had (2003), is a guide to reading the classic works of fiction, poetry, history, autobiography, and drama. Norton also published The Well-Trained Mind: A Guide to Classical Education at Home (with co-author Jessie Wise), originally published in 1999, this bestselling guide to education in the classical tradition was revised and updated in 2004 and again in 2009. For Peace Hill Press, Susan has written a four-volume world history series for children, The Story of the World, for Peace Hill Press. Volume 1, Ancient Times, was published in 2002 (revised edition 2006); Volume 2, The Middle Ages, in 2003 (revised edition 2007); and Volume 3, Early Modern Times, in 2004. The final volume, The Modern Age, was published in 2006. She has also written a best-selling elementary writing program, Writing With Ease. Susan is also the author of The Art of the Public Grovel (Princeton University Press) and many articles and reviews. Visit her blog at www.welltrainedmind.com. The Well-Trained Mind Academy (WTMA) was founded in 2014 by Susan Wise Bauer to provide a natural extension of your homeschooling education, rooted in classical methods. We offer live, online instruction that fits your student's overall educational plan. Our instructors are qualified in their fields and have years of experience in teaching, tutoring, and homeschooling. The administration at WTMA works closely with students, parents, and instructors to create an educational environment that fits the needs of each family. Our teaching methods are based on the three-part classical pattern of training the mind, called the trivium. Students begin their studies by learning the foundations of a subject. Questioning and argumentation (logic skills) follow. Finally, students are taught how to express their own ideas about their subjects. At the heart of our curriculum is our mandate to teach students how to learn, so that they may leave WTMA with the motivation to pursue knowledge their whole lives. The Well-Trained Mind Academy presents classical education curriculum for middle and high school students in a live, interactive environment. WTMA values a learning environment in which students can interact directly with the instructor and fellow students in real-time. Live classes allow students to practice articulating their original ideas. We also offer lectures in a delayed format for students whose schedules require more flexibility. Tutoring services are available for students needing extra attention in a certain subject area. View Instructor Teaching Samples Watch Our Extended Live Class Preview
